Purpose

Wilderness First Aid training is the assessment of and treatment given to an ill or injured person in a remote environment where definitive care by a physician and/or rapid transport is not readily available. This course goes far beyond what you may know as “first aid.” While it contains substantial medical information and teaches skills required for medical emergencies in the wild, the deeper purpose is to train participants to manage acute situations. The bottom line is this: Better decision-making at the incident scene miles from base facilities can save valuable time and human resources. It can save lives, too. This course is required for troops and crews attending Philmont or other high adventure treks.

Content

Participants will learn how to assess, treat, and (when possible) contain emergencies within the scope of their training.
